This exercise emphasizes the fact that it is hard to take time to read all directions if you feel you are under pressure. However, if you do not read the directions, you may do things that are unnecessary and time consuming. This can tell an employer that you will not take the time to do a job correctly. In this activity, question number seven instructed you to only answer question number 10.

Applications

Paper application checklist

Description	Completed
To fill the application out at the employer's work site, come prepared with a pen, employment dates, job titles, duties, names and locations of past employers, education history, accomplishments, list of software proficiency, skills and prior-employer contact information.
Read the application before you begin to write.
Follow instructions exactly as written. Check all appropriate boxes on the form.
Make several copies of the blank application in case you need to reprint due to errors.
Target your application to the job for which you are applying.
First impressions are everything – keep your application neat. Nice handwriting (easy to read) – or typed; no smears, stains or ink smudges; odor free; no white-out or redactions.
Use action words whenever possible for greater effect.
List your most recent job first – then work backward for as much work history as requested on the application. Emphasize your knowledge, skills and abilities (accomplishments too, when possible).
Never write “see résumé” to fill in details from your work history.
Use spaces provided to write in answers. If you need to add additional information, use an asterisk (*) and write “see attached page for further information.” Include an additional typed page with any vital information that did not fit in the space provided by the employer. Use this option sparingly and only when it enhances your match to the open position.
Make sure that all blanks on the application have been filled. If you can't fill in a question asked on the application, put N/A for not applicable. If the question is illegal (race, gender, religion, marital status, disability or other discriminatory information) or if you don't know the answer to a question, do not submit your form until you can resolve the issue.
If you don't know what to put for desired wage, research wages in your area through the Employment Security Department website (www.esd.wa.gov/employmentdata); or use Salary.com website's Salary Wizard; or use the wage range listed on the job posting.
If there is a large amount of space given to a particular question on the application, assume it is important to the employer. Use this space wisely to highlight how you are a match for the job.
Attach résumé and/or cover letter, if required by the employer. Check the job listing or the application for this specific instruction.
Check for spelling and grammar errors.
Sign document if a signature line is provided on the form.
Have someone else proof your work before submitting the document.
Make yourself a copy of your paper application before you turn it in. You can review what you wrote before an interview or if the employer calls for clarifying information.
